

Escape Action Begun

Smoke, Not Fire,
Kill Spacemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oxygen supply to the astronauts reported fire in their spaceships three times within nine seconds and had started prescribed escape action when they died, investigators say.

A preliminary report made public Friday night — almost one week to the hour after the Cape Kennedy launch pad accident — indicated that smoke rather than fire killed the three astronauts.

"The official death certificates of the crew members list the cause of death as asphyxiation due to smoke inhalation due to the fire," said Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

In his lengthy report to NASA Administrator James E. Webb, Seamans said investigators still are without direct clues on what sparked the inferno during a test countdown that resulted in the deaths of Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom, Air Force Lt. Col. Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

Dr. George E. Mueller, NASA's associate administrator for manned space flight, said three unmanned Apollo flights will be launched this year as scheduled. But he set no new date for the first three-man orbital flight, postponed indefinitely by last week's fire.

Seamans said his report to Webb was based on preliminary information not yet extensively analyzed by a review board now investigating the accident.

The report said the cabin pressure, cabin temperature, and oxygen suit supply temperature were normal up to the time the fire was detected at 6:31:03 p.m.

After the third report of fire, the report said, "No other intelligible communications were received although some listeners believe there was one sharp cry of pain. Loss of radio signals occurred a few seconds later."

Sources at Cape Kennedy said NASA is considering changing the pure oxygen environment of the Apollo cabin to an air-like mixture of nitrogen and oxygen to reduce the fire hazard.

The oxygen-nitrogen breathing system would be used only during ground testing and during the launch phase. Once in orbit the cabin would be pressurized with pure oxygen. In orbit, the cabin could be decompressed rapidly, snuffing out any fire in the vacuum of space — something that cannot be done on the ground.

Should such a major redesign of the spacecraft be ordered, the delay in the nation's moon landing program could stretch far beyond the apparent initial delay of at least six months caused by the accident.

Police Probe
School Entry
In East End

City police today were investigating an overnight entering at the East Junior High School building on Erie St. in which vandals forced open two vending machines and obtained a small amount of change and damaged other property.

One of the intruders apparently forced his way through a window into the art room at the school, then went to the front door and admitted an accomplice, officers said.

They then went into the boiler room and obtained tools to force open a soft drink and milk vending machine.

The intruders then removed the hinges from the office door and obtained several keys to other rooms of the building which they apparently did not attempt to enter. The keys were found scattered on the floor.

Another unconfirmed report said that the Garfield School in the East End had also been entered during the night.

Police took fingerprints at the East Junior High building this morning in connection with the investigation.

One estimate placed property damage at the school at several hundred dollars.

MEANY since then has kept quiet while Reuther steadily escalated his criticism, charging that the AFL-CIO lacks the social vision, the dynamic thrust, the crusading spirit that should characterize the progressive, modern labor movement."

REUTHER's assault on Meany began last June after the AFL-CIO's delegate walked out of the International Labor Organization, a United Nations agency, in Geneva because it elected a Communist president.

This, said Reuther, hurt Johnson's efforts to ease cold war tensions.

State Department Claims Bombings Don't Snag Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says U.S. bombing of North Vietnam has not "interfered in any way with prospects for the discussion of a peace settlement."

The comment Friday followed reports from East European sources at the United Nations that December bombings near Hanoi had wrecked prospects for peace talks which were then being promoted.

State Department spokesman Carl Bartch said, "We have sought from the other side some indication of a reciprocal response which would justify the cessation of bombing of military targets as a step towards peace."

"At no time have we received any indication, direct or indirect, from North Vietnam that it was prepared to make such a response."

President Johnson said Thursday in a news conference that "just almost any step" toward peace from North Vietnam could lead to a halt in the bombings.

Meanwhile at the United Nations, Secretary-General U Thant was reported by a spokesman to be continuing "in his own quiet way" efforts at peace.

Vahaly's southbound auto crossed over the centerline on a curve and into the path of the northbound Campagna auto, according to their report.

It was understood Kennedy had, with State Department approval, written a personal letter to Czech President Antonin Novotny urging the travel agent's release. Brooke had wired the Czech ambassador this week also urging suspension of the sentence and expulsion of Ksan-Komarek from the country.

The three-judge court in Prague convicted Kazan-Komarek of organizing and directing an antistate group as a paid agent of a foreign intelligence service from late 1948 after the Communists took over Czechoslovakia, until December 1950.

The court said Kazan-Komarek operated in West Germany and France as well as Czechoslovakia.

It was charged with smuggling people "in whom the foreign intelligence service was interested" and in bringing radio transmitters and arms into the country.

The court said Kazan-Komarek was taken prisoner by the Germans in World War II, escaped and was employed by the U.S. Army in Nuremberg from May 1945 to May 1946. He lived in France for a while, emigrated to the United States in 1953 and became a U.S. citizen in 1960. He and his wife have five children.

His arrest came as he was returning from a conference of travel agents in the Soviet capital. The Soviet travel service had invited him to attend the conference, which dealt with preparation for the 1967 international tourist year.

Antistate activities in Czechoslovakia theoretically are punishable by death, but this penalty has not been invoked since Stalin's time.

In pronouncing sentence, the court said it took into account the fact that more than 16 years had elapsed since Kazan-Komarek engaged in espionage.

Put Up Or Shut Up

More and more indications point toward the possibility of peace negotiations in Vietnam.

Neutrals have told of Hanoi hints aimed at coming together around the peace table.

Experts on Asian affairs have said it appears the possibility of peace talks is growing.

There is continuing agitation in the United States for a negotiated settlement.

If the United States can verify that Hanoi is interested in talking, now would be an appropriate time to stop bombing in North Vietnam.

The pause should coincide with a direct message to Ho Chi Minh for negotiations.

Then any move would be up to the North Vietnamese officials — and pressure would weigh heavily on them.

As it is now, Hanoi keeps saying no peace can be negotiated until the bombing stops. This gives it an automatic out—so long as we continue to bomb.

A sudden pause in bombing and a direct thrust toward peace talks would serve as a "put-up-or-shut-up" ultimatum to Hanoi.

If Hanoi showed it was propagandizing about peace and dragged its feet, bombing could be resumed.

When you are fighting an undeclared war in a no-win manner with negotiated peace as the goal, compromise is all that can be expected.

Preliminary sparring about peace talks is over. It is time to make our move. The opening is there.

If we miss this chance, it may be a while before we get another.

We owe it to our servicemen to give it a try — the living and the dead.

Bridging The Crime Gap

Opening of the FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington goes a long way toward bridging the crime gap.

Organized crime has continued to grow in the United States for years because of inadequate means to deal with it effectively.

Few communities in the United States today can boast that increasing crime is not an alarming problem.

Modern methods must be brought into play against the forces of crime.

The new FBI center is one answer.

When the network is fully operable, instant criminal identification will be possible through computer use of fingerprint and police records.

It's Those Tags That Matter

Stark County Reps. Robert E. Levitt and Richard G. Reichel are moving in the right direction toward meaningful highway safety for Ohioans.

They have introduced a proposal to crack down on chronic accident-causers — motorists who accumulate nine points under the state's point-system law.

These repeaters could be ordered in for a physical examination, a driver license test, or both. Failure to show up would cause a license to be revoked. Or it might be revoked or restricted after an examination.

Rep. Levitt believes another way to get at them would be to suspend their auto license plates along with their driver licenses. He says he finds people object to this because it might inflict hardship on other persons using the same car.

Letter From Max

Dear Truman Twill:

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Coffer are undergoing an agonizing reappraisal of their finances as they try to agree on their 1967 family budget.

He calls her LBJ because she tells him how much she needs and what for, and she calls him Ev, after Sen. Everett Dirksen, because he has a lot to say about how much money she gets and what for.

He likes to think the letter "L" in LBJ stands for Lurleen.

"The way I have it figured," she growled at him, "we will have a deficit for the calendar year of something like nine billion unless you get a sur-salary of seven per cent."

"I already told you," he warned, "that I asked the boss for a raise and he said he thought the corporation was better able to handle its money than I was. He said if he gave me a raise I would just go out and spend it and add to inflation."

"Well," she yelled, "I have gone over our figures a hundred times and we can't have butter and your gun collection, too."

"Then we'll just have to cut down on our butter and start using the cheaper spread," he said. "We will have to concentrate on getting by on basic necessities and forget about frills."

"Okay," she snorted, "we can start cutting by eliminating your physical fitness program such as golf, the boat and our foreign-aid program for the cat and dog. After all, you can get just as much exercise by mowing the lawn as by playing 18 holes of golf and have something to show for the effort besides."

"How about slashing the beautification program?" he suggested. "All those beauty treatments and fancy clothes and hose don't seem to be necessary to sustain life here in our little enclave."

"Next you'll be trying to cut down on education and funds for our underdeveloped children," she cried.

"I get tired of hearing that old malarkey every year at budget time," he said. "Look at the smartest men this country ever produced, Jefferson, Madison, Edison and Gen. Mills. They were never coddled the way our kids are coddled. The kids just squander their allowances on candy and run up dentist bills, anyway."

"You certainly don't want the neighbors and our friends to think that three-fourths of this family is ill-clothed, do you?" she jibed.

"I happen to have a pocket of poverty myself," he exclaimed, "and when are you going to get around to mending that hole in my pocket? We'll have to do something about correcting our unfavorable balance of payments."

"Such as forgetting about that new car you were talking about," she replied.

"No, I was thinking about a more efficient use of our labor supply," he countered.

"Maybe if you worked harder at the office you could make more money," she suggested.

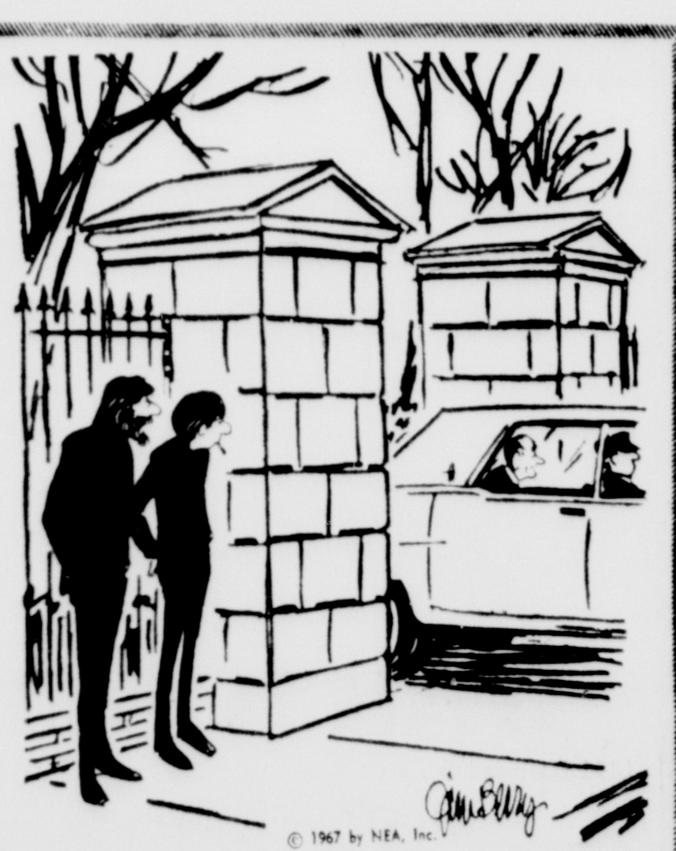

"I took that up with the boss, but everything is automation these days," he explained. "I told the boss I could produce a lot more if he put a key on my typewriter to write nine zeros at one punch of a key. That would make it lots quicker to write the national deficit of nine billion dollars."

"But meantime we would still have an empty coffee," said Phil Coffer.

"Don't be melodramatic," said she.

Faithfully yours,

MAX

Inside Story On California

By Raymond Moley

Some comments in the East about dismissal of Clark Kerr from the presidency of the University of California have been a mixture of panic, prejudice and misinformation.

President Nathan Pusey of Harvard speaks of "an affront to higher education generally." The New York Times editorialized about "the twilight of a great university."

Prejudice of a political nature is expressed by the charge made by Dr. Kerr, himself, that behind the dismissal were "right-wing radicals in California."

This is as prejudicial a charge against a state as William Manchester's charge that right-wing elements in Dallas were responsible for President Kennedy's assassination.

Misinformation is even more regrettable. Channels of communication to California are open. The pertinent facts, easily obtainable even at a distance, are:

Dr. Kerr's dismissal did not come, as one account had it, with "shocking suddenness." Opposition to Kerr had been growing in the California Board of Regents for more than two years. It was the conviction of some of the regents that Kerr's management of the Berkeley disorders in 1964 had proved his inadequacy as president.

Lack of confidence increased in the spring of 1965. At that time, he called a press conference to announce his resignation, and only five minutes before the news was released telephoned his intention to the chairman of the Board of Regents.

When the regents met, Gov. Edmund G. Brown argued that the resignation be rejected. Two members were swayed by this, and no action was taken. That was direct interference by a governor.

Now former Gov. Brown accuses Gov. Ronald Reagan of political interference, though the new governor did not initiate the dismissal. He regretted that action was precipitated at this time.

My information indicates if there had been a direct showdown the regents would probably have dismissed Kerr even before Reagan was nominated and elected. Confidence in Kerr's capacity as an administrator had been ebbing for more than two years.

The issue was drawn on Jan. 20, 1967, by Kerr, who asked to meet with the chairman and the vice chairman of the regents before

A Vietnam Echo?

WASHINGTON

President Johnson, using a news conference to make a major appeal for peace in Vietnam, admitted frustrations nine times but the irony in what he said is that he said it all before.

This time he simply pulled a bunch of pieces together, dipping all the way back into 1965, and presented them in one big bundle to a listening world with the obvious intent of showing his earnest desire for a settlement.

He was clearly answering the critics of American foreign policy and probably had no effect on them, since nothing he has said along the same lines before did.

Nine times, in one form or another, Johnson said, "In all candor, I must say that I am not aware of any serious effort that the other side has made, in my judgment, to bring the fighting to a stop and to stop the war."

AFTER HIS Honolulu conference last February with South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, Johnson and Ky in their communiqué said they "noted with regret the total absence of a present interest in peace" by North Vietnam.

Thus through repetition, Johnson attempted to show the consistency of the American position in wishing peace while being ignored by the Communists.

There was nothing off-the-cuff about Johnson's performance. Vietnam had been high in the news for days, with speculation that the North Vietnamese were beginning to throw out hints they wanted to discuss an end to the fighting.

The President came prepared against any slip of the tongue. He had a loose-leaf book with notes in front of him and glanced at them constantly as he gave his lengthy answers to short questions.

By James Marlow

The news conference lasted nearly 30 minutes and almost all of it was taken up with questions about Vietnam. Under ordinary circumstances Johnson could have said all he had to say in about three of those minutes.

The fact that he took up all the time he did is pretty good evidence that he wanted to make Thursday's appearance before the television news conference a major production on Vietnam.

As long ago as April 7, 1965, at Johns Hopkins University, Johnson had said, "We remain ready for unconditional discussions." Thursday he said the same thing.

JOHNSON EVEN repeated with a slight variation, the picture of his troubled self lying awake at night thinking about the war.

At Johns Hopkins he said:

"Every night before I turn out the lights to sleep I ask myself this question: Have I done everything I can to unite this country? Have I done everything I can to help unite the world, to try to bring peace and hope to all the people of the world? Have I done enough?"

Thursday he put it this way: "I go to bed every night feeling that I failed that day because I could not end the conflict in Vietnam. I do have disappointments and moments of distress, as I think every president has had. I am not complaining."

Johnson drew a broad picture of the various ways in which he thought peace talks could be started, beginning with discussions and going on to negotiations.

He had said this in different form in 1966, just as most of what else he said Thursday was a rerun or an echo of what he said last year.

Lewis 'Bug' Warning Recalled

WASHINGTON — It was that great thunderer John L. Lewis, now at 87 quietly contemplating the world he helped build, who was the first of the labor giants to lash out against electronic eavesdropping. With a rare chuckle he related how the former ambassador to the USSR, Joseph E. Davies, had told him that the Soviet secret police had put a "bug" in the furbelows of the ambassadorial bed in our Moscow embassy.

That was 19 years ago in San Francisco. He warned his colleagues they'd run into the "thing" in the U.S. — not placed by the Russians but by "those who want to pry on us in labor."

Now, almost two decades later, many a labor leader is launching an open war on telephone tapping, electronic eavesdropping, the use of parabolic sound reflectors, "black light" beams, spike miles and any other garden variety bug.

Victor Riesel

THE SILENCE of the war on electronic intrusion apparently has been broken by union chiefs who either want to back up President Johnson's State of the Union message plea for the end of bugging or fear that many union headquarters are being "tuned in" by unnamed forces in and out of the government.

Apparently many labor leaders with complaints have run to Congressman Emanuel Celler, head of the all-powerful House Judiciary Committee. He has told this columnist that he knows of frequent bugging of union offices in Washington.

He would not elaborate. He merely suggested that we await the committee's public hearings as soon as the subcommittee is organized.

ONE OF THE TOUGHEST opponents of any type of listening devices for almost any reason, official or otherwise, is President Johnson's close friend Joseph Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America (CWA), an Irishman who can always be seen hurtling towards a fight he believes worth making.

Beirne is absolute on this one. He called a special meeting of his 14-man Executive Board recently to back up Mr. Johnson. He left no margin for maneuverability. He and his colleagues declared themselves against all eavesdropping even in the fight against organized crime.

"Even if crime could in a degree be prevented," said Beirne and his board the other day, "we should not choose the use of these ends. The case for continuation of wiretapping, eavesdropping and telephone monitoring is so weak, and the irreparable injury to our freedoms is so serious and certain, that there is no justification for such authority."

This was cheered by labor leaders who generally don't cheer the rapier-tongued Joe Beirne who, it is consequential to know, is one of Jim Hoffa's most bitter foes.

OF COURSE, Hoffa and his friends are deep in the battle, though this area of struggle is quite distant from Beirne's.

In Detroit, a group of militant unionists are spark-plugging a wide-spectrum public committee to stir things not only in the auto city but to spread a network of anti-wiretapping groups right across the U.S. Treasurer of the Detroit operation is Myra Wolfgang of the Hotel and Restaurant workers.

They have the support of Emil Mazey, generally recognized to be second in command of the sprawling United Auto Workers Union. He has promised to seek support from Walter Reuther who would make possible official UAW backing — with all this would imply in money and prestige.

Not only is this committee bucking wiretapping and bugging, but also "the use of informers by law enforcement agencies." Operating as the Committee to Preserve American Freedom, it invited Jim Hoffa and Mazey to address its first public rally.

So the battle has started. From many cities there will come labor delegations seeking the witness chairs in the coming Senate and House hearings into covert listening.

The shouting will be loud enough to be heard across the land without benefit of any microphone.

Bishop Talks At Episcopal Convention

CLEVELAND (AP)—Retiring Bishop Nelson M. Burroughs of the Episcopal Diocese of Ohio says he will confer with his coadjutor, the Rev. Dr. John Harris Burt, on all matters of policy, "as my predecessor conferred with me."

Bishop Burroughs told this to more than 400 delegates attending the sesquicentennial convention of the 48-county diocese Friday.

The Rev. Dr. Burt was to be consecrated at Trinity Cathedral this morning as bishop coadjutor with the right to succession when Bishop Burroughs retires, sometime before December 1971.

A banquet Friday night celebrating the 150th anniversary of the diocese drew more than 2,000 Episcopals and clergy of other faiths.

The invocation was by the Most Rev. Clarence G. Issenmann, bishop of the Cleveland Catholic Diocese.

During the banquet, retired Bishop Beverly Dandridge Tucker of the Ohio diocese was seated into the activities at the Hotel Sheraton-Cleveland ballroom by telephone.

Today is Bishop Tucker's 15th anniversary of retirement and his 85th birthday. He is recuperating from a heart attack at his home in suburban Cleveland Heights.

Dr. Burt, the new bishop coadjutor, was serving as a rector in Pasadena, Calif., when elected last May.

The 48-year-old native of Marquette, Mich., went to Pasadena from Youngstown where he was rector of St. John's Episcopal church 1956-57.

The Rt. Rev. John E. Hines of New York, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, told the convention delegates that "the role of the church in this time of great change . . . is that of involvement, since the church itself has helped produce many of the roots of the 'revolution.'

LIVING WITHOUT GOD

In the twelfth chapter of the book of Luke our Lord tells a parable concerning a man who tried to live his life without God. This man had been greatly blessed with material goods. His ground had brought forth many goods. He did not even have enough room to take care of all of his goods. Thus he determined that he would pull down his barns and build greater. Then, looking into the future, this man made plans for "many years". However, God informed him that he would die that very night. It is quite evident as we read this parable that the man who is described, has taken no thought of God. He intended to live without God. How tragic.

In the world today we many times are confronted with people like the rich farmer that we read about in this parable. When we try to encourage some to attend the public services of the church, and to do the other things that God wants His creation to do, we are told by these people that maybe sometime they will begin to live this way but that they are just not interested now. They think they can live without God! This too, is a very tragic mistake.

Sometimes with the material blessings of life there comes a false sense of security. The farmer did not see his need for God because he was too busy taking care of the material blessings that he was receiving. He did not stop to realize that these blessings come from God.

Jas. 1:17 "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above . . . So it is today. We see people working diligently to get as much wealth as they possibly can. Many times in their eager desire for wealth, they overlook the Giver of all blessings. Make sure that this is not the case in your life.

Also, the man that we read about in Jesus' parable did it to serve God.

Judges Asked For Decision In Milk Fight

HARRISBURG (AP) — Six Commonwealth Court judges have been asked to decide whether Pennsylvania's Milk Control Law has forced consumers to pay excessively high retail prices for milk.

That was the central issue raised Friday in final arguments in a suit that indirectly challenges the constitutionality of the 30-year-old regulatory law.

There was no indication when a decision would be handed down, but many participants in the case said they did not expect a decision for at least 30 days.

Both sides had said earlier that any decision probably would automatically be appealed to the State Supreme Court.

Involved in the court battle are the State Milk Control Commission and two retail dairy chain stores: Lily - Penn Food Stores, Inc., of Philadelphia and Louden Hill Farms, Inc., of Dimock, Susquehanna County.

The commission is asking the court to make permanent a temporary order it had issued last Nov. 16 prohibiting the two dairy chains from selling milk at prices below minimums set by the commission.

Differences In Fences

Some Designed To Keep In, Some To Keep Out,
They Serve Varied Purposes Throughout District

By HARRY STEWART

FENCES ARE DESIGNED to keep in children, dogs, cows, sheep, chickens and mark the boundary of your property. Fences are designed to keep out children, dogs, cows, sheep, chickens and mark the boundary of your neighbor's property.

It all depends on which side of the fence you're on.

Fences are made of wood, stone, metal, brick, wire, logs, rails, trees, bushes, boulders, hedges, cans, bottles and all sorts of combinations of the aforementioned articles.

Wars, feuds and just plain neighborly battles have been started over fences.

Fences have been described as ornamental, decorative, practical, sturdy and a thing of necessity. Fences also have been called a few other names, most of which are not printable.

Robert Frost once wrote "Good fences make good neighbors."

THIS MAY HAVE been true in old New England, but cattle-men in the days of wide open range sometimes debated the question rather strongly. And all the lead used to write down some of the issues didn't come from pencils.

A hedge, wall, ditch or bank legally constitutes a fence, as well as a structure of posts and boards, palings, rails or wire.

Some fences such as those marking the boundaries of huge western ranches extend for hundreds of miles. Others, such as those around a housewife's flower garden, may be only two or three feet in length.

Of all man-made barriers, probably the most awe-inspiring is the Great Wall of China. It was completed, from earlier walls, as a continuous unit by Emperor Ch'in Shih Huang Ti in the third century B. C. It was built to keep out the warring tribes, but it didn't work.

In modern times, the wall has marked the line between farming and grazing areas along the desert border of agricultural China in the north and northwest.

American pioneers used stone walls and split rails for fences in the eastern section of the country while those in the west used sod or turf and sometimes rows of thorn bushes and cacti.

The pioneers split logs into rails, using them to encircle their property. As there were plenty of trees that had to be felled in order to farm the ground, the wood provided a natural material for building fences.

Rails laid in a zigzag pattern were sometimes called worm fence. Using this "jack pole" method, the rails were laid on X-shaped post structures.

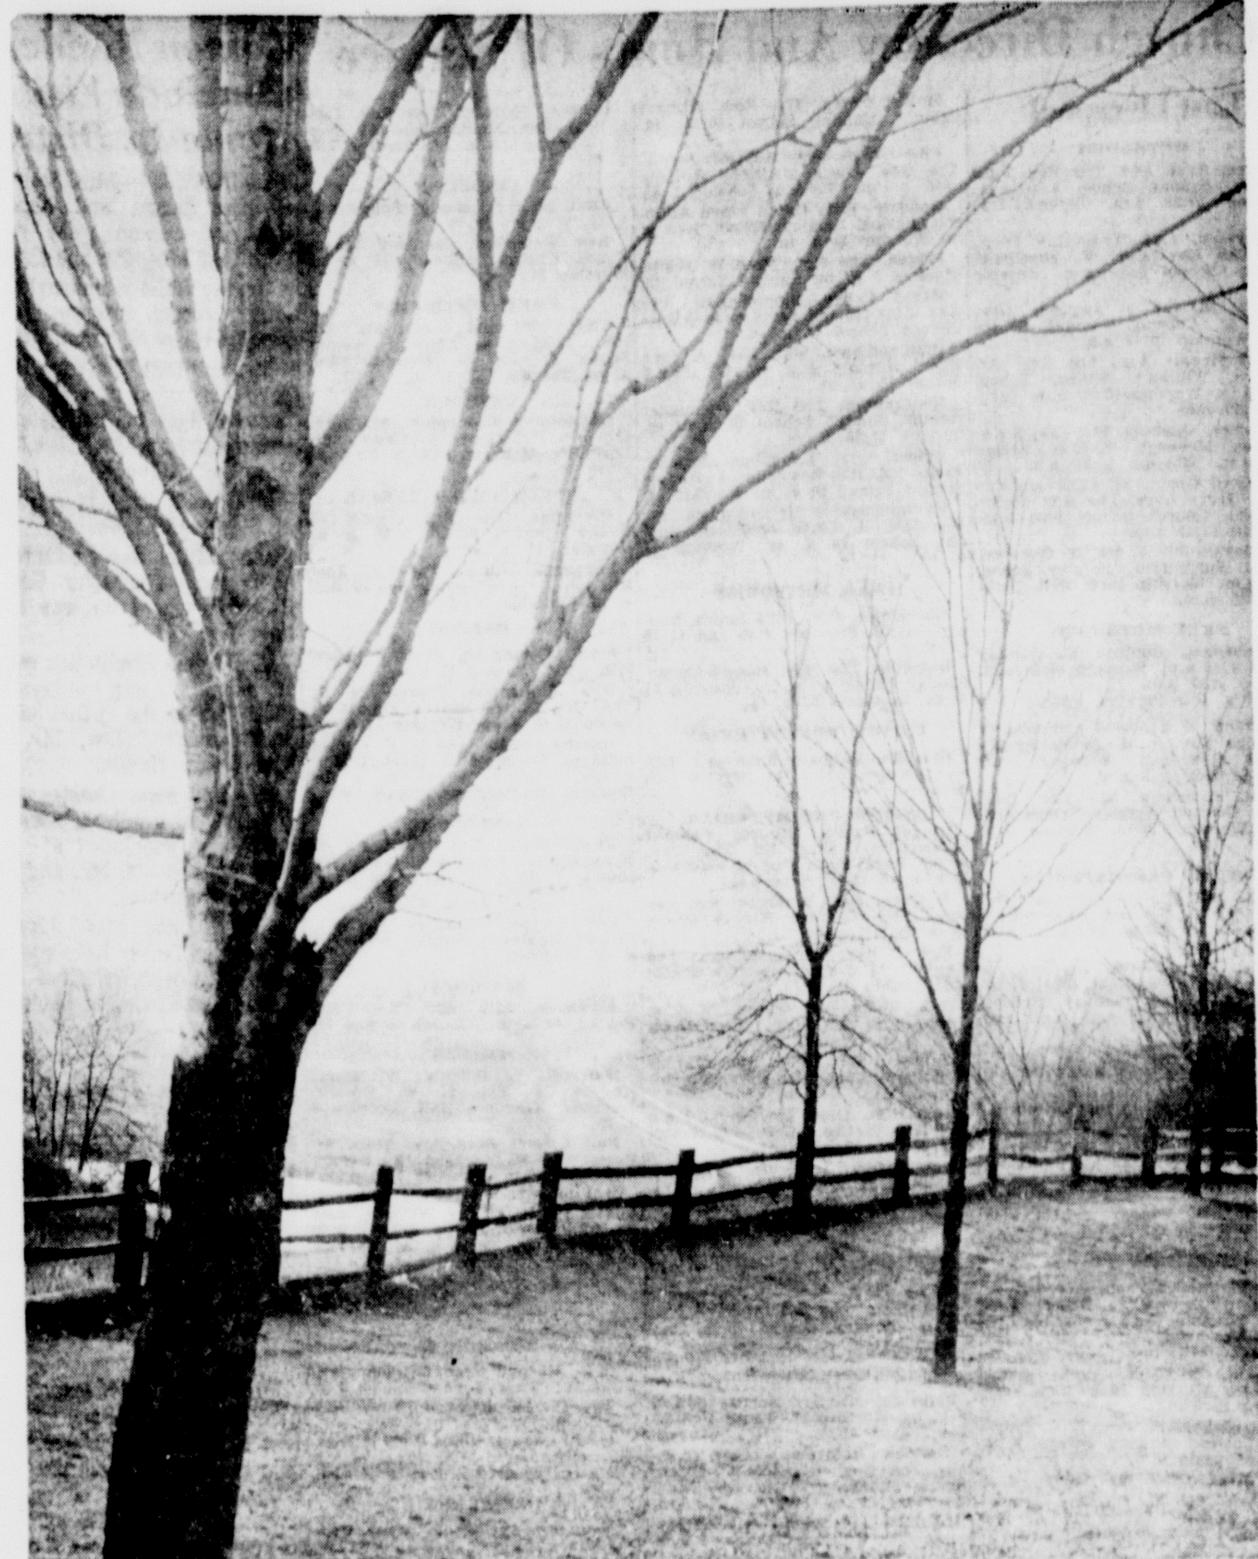

IN THE MORTISE and tenon method, rectangular holes were cut through posts to support the rails.

Sections of the rail fences sometimes can be found in rural areas on older farms. They usually present a pretty scene, the wood having aged and weathered to a dark color, with the natural surroundings in the background.

Wire was first used for fencing in the 1800s. Wire was manufactured prior to this, but it was not used for fencing because it was expensive.

Plain wire fences in England date back to 1840.

Barbed wire—hated in the old west—was put into use in

The colorful view from the Ohio Roadside Park along Route 30 near Crockery City Farms is enhanced by a wandering wooden rail fence, in keeping with the rustic atmosphere of the scene.

Farmers use large hedgerows to divide their property, and during World War II, these growths were the scenes of some of the fiercest fighting between the Allies and Germans.

Picket fences are slowly losing their popularity, although no calendar scene of a little cottage in the glen would be complete without the white fence around it.

Pickets can be traced back through the ages when warriors used sharpened poles, or pickets, to surround their garrisons. Even today sharp pickets deter young boys from climbing over a fence and possibly ruining a flower garden.

Boys are naturally attracted to fences. They are to be climbed, jumped over or climbed on. And, fences usually mean gates and gates can be used to swing on.

Fences have played an important part in many a novel, especially those of the Old West when range wars were started over fences, but few are as famous as the fence used by Mark Twain's character Tom Sawyer. Through trickery, Tom got several other boys to whitewash a large fence, a chore he didn't want, and in return was paid by the boys for allowing them to do it.

The plain board fences of yesteryear played an important part in Americana. Far from being ornamental, they served more than just showing a property line.

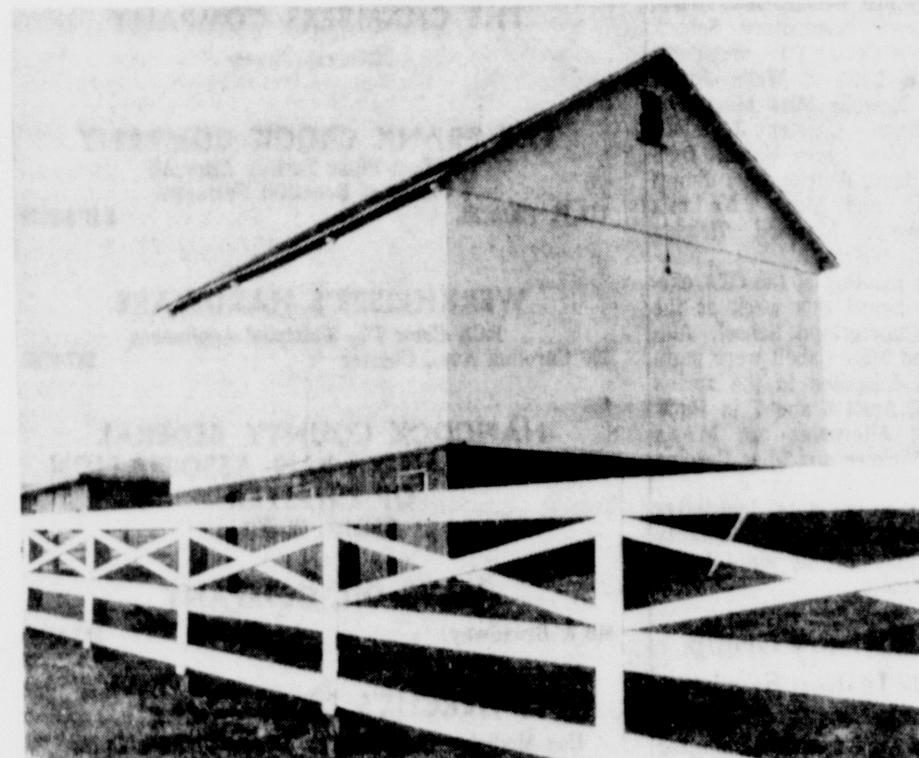

These fences were used by promoters for plastering bills advertising everything from the circus to chewing tobacco and girdles. It seemed the fences were almost continually being covered with another new, brilliantly colored poster and in return, the owner received some small remuneration.

Besides it meant the fence did not have to be painted. Who could ask for more?

If you are of a mind to build a fence, you might use the advice of old farmers who say build it "horse high, bull strong and pig tight."

Fences, like some humans, run from here to there, but never go anywhere. Fences can be pretty or ugly, they can be weak or sturdy, but whatever they may be, they still separate yours from mine.

Which side are you on?

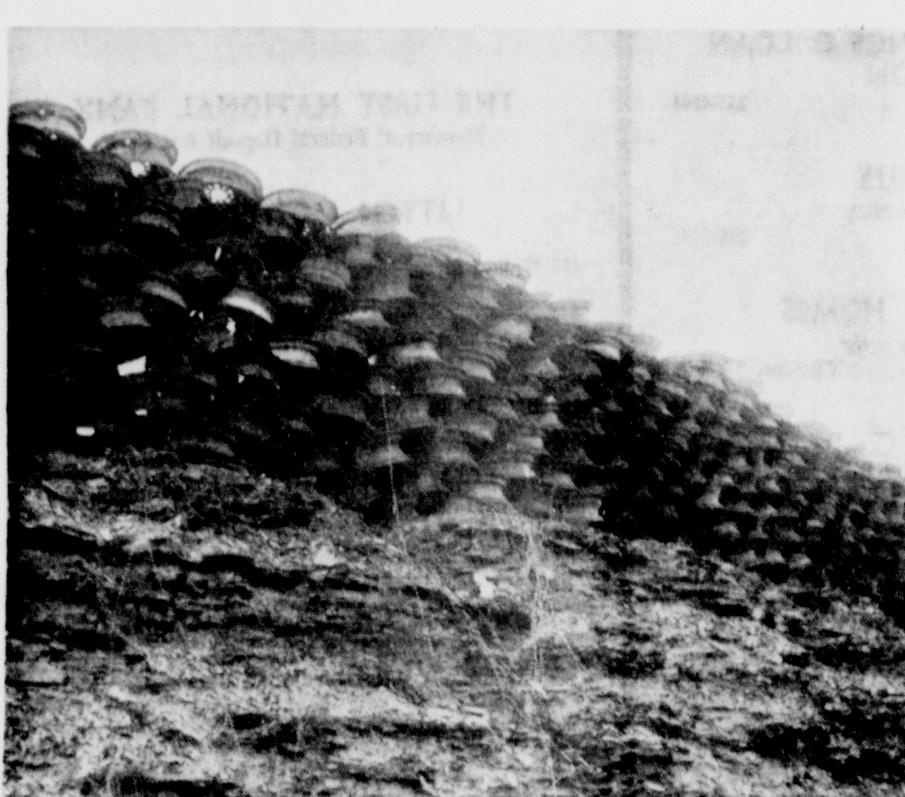

Gleaming white open wood fences in square and cross-cross patterns generally mean there are horses and horsemen around, such as at this barn along Route 30 near West Point.

Sheep and smaller animals are confined on many area farms by woven wire stock fencing, here supported by a decaying tree stump.

Kenneth Scott of Georgetown R. D. 1 leans upon an ornate iron fence, popular in the late 19th Century, in front of the Eagles Lodge of Broadway, East Liverpool.

Automobile wheels are stacked at the edge of a car disassembly yard along Lisbon St. Ext. between LaCroft and Glenmoor to provide a combined storage area and unusual fence.

Barbed wire has long proved a boon for the farmer and cattlemen, and kept from wandering big Angus such as this one along the Y. & O. Rd.

This frontier style rail fence along the property of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Temple of Route 164 four miles north of Lisbon has stood for more than half a century.

Outdoor Notes

By HARRY STEWART
Review Staff Member

THE SHORTAGE of hunting and fishing areas in the Tri-State Area has been known for years by sportsmen. Each year the situation grows more acute. Now the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the Department of Interior says that it could grow worse in the coming years.

The states of Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia are aware of the need for more recreational areas, but are hindered financially in efforts to acquire more land and water for public use. The problem is present in other parts of the nation, but in the highly industrialized Ohio River Basin more and more land is needed each year for the growth of industry and the communities to support them.

It seems to be a never ending circle because as more people settle in a given area, more land is needed to provide recreational areas. Tremendous strides have been made in the past few years in some phases, but not enough to keep up with the demands.

The statement from the federal agency on the shortage of recreational space follows a six-year study.

The bureau also lists some steps which can be taken to help the situation. Heading the list is creation of new waters and curbing pollution. The pollution problem is one of which areas residents are well aware.

We are faced with it every day. The Ohio River which flows by our front door is a classic example of polluted water. The pollution problem has improved somewhat in the past 10 years with the installation of sewage treatment facilities by river communities.

Still, there is the ever present industrial pollution. We, as individuals must have employment to survive and rear our families, and industry claims that it cannot compete on an equal basis if it is forced to install complete treatment facilities.

SOMETIMES this is just used as an excuse. Even though industry as a whole could do much to improve the problem, a blanket accusation cannot be pointed at all. Many industries go much farther than is necessary to meet the requirements of law in relation to pollution. Many support conservation projects, realizing that clean water benefits all and not just a few.

Pollution is not just the dumping of sewage or industrial wastes. Much pollution is caused by the general public in its use of the facilities already available. Trash, tin cans, garbage and other refuse is dumped along the shorelines of lakes and streams. This is pollution.

What you or I discard may only seem like a very small amount, but added to what others throw away it quickly adds up. Therefore money needed to acquire more land for recreational use must be expended to care for what is already present.

Sometimes the use of private land is cut off by the owners because of misuse by the public. A little care could have kept these areas open.

For example in this area less than a year ago a section of the Beaver Creek shoreline had to be closed by the owners

First we must become aware there is a problem and then become interested enough to be willing to help correct it.

Following is the substance of the public report made by the Department of Interior.

The 20 million residents of the Ohio River Basin are now facing a shortage of fishing and hunting opportunities and the situation could become worse in the next few years. That is the substance of a six-year federal study conducted by the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Population growth in the Ohio Basin means increased demands for fishing and hunting opportunities. For many years outdoorsmen of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, as well as other states, have come to the Ohio River and its tributaries for fishing, hunting, boating or just loafing. This use is increasing. With better water quality, patterns of use will change. As a result, existing fishing and hunting opportunities are becoming very limited and inadequate to meet the needs and demands of future generations of sportsmen.

Unless fish and game benefits are included in planning water development projects, residents of Ohio River Basin state will be without adequate outdoor recreation opportunities within a decade.

The Bureau's study revealed that demand for sport fishing will increase by 62 per cent by 1980 and 88 per cent by the year 2,000.

Even assuming that some of this increased demand will be met by new habitat development programs, the Ohio River Basin may still fail to provide for 3.1 million angler days by 1980 and more than 10 million angler days by the year 2000.

The hunters' need for places and game to hunt is expected to increase at a slower rate than demand for angler facilities. Even so, hunter demand will increase by 18 per cent by 1980 and 23 per cent by the year 2000.

SOME STEPS WHICH could be taken to meet the new demands were listed by the Bureau. These included:

Creating new waters.
Curbing pollution.
Zoning waters for equitable use.
Rehabilitation of unproductive fishing waters.

Opening more lands and waters to public use through purchase, lease or easement.
More intensive management of public hunting areas.
Selective introduction of exotic species.

Increasing research efforts to explore better management techniques.

According to Robert Burwell, regional director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife's 11-state North Central Region, the future fishing and hunting needs of the people present a problem of utmost importance to every one of us.

While a piecemeal approach to water development may have been appropriate yesterday, tomorrow's growing needs are greater — more complex. There is a limitless frontier for inventiveness, research, and cooperation among state and federal agencies to meet this challenge.

Stamps In The News

Frederick Douglass, the runaway slave who rose to become a distinguished editor and diplomat, will be honored on a U.S. 25-cent stamp with first-day ceremonies in Washington on Feb. 14. The issuance of the new stamp will coincide with Negro History Week.

Born Frederick Augustus Washington Bailey on Col. Ed Lloyd's Maryland plantation, stamp issued Jan. 30 honoring Albert Gallatin, former secretary of the Treasury. The stamp's place of first-day issuance is Gallatin, Mo., named after Albert Gallatin. The designer of the stamp is Robert Gallatin, a distant relative. The Gallatin stamp is part of the new "Prominent Americans" series of 18 stamps.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS

The vertical stamp bears the portrait of the man who served as secretary of the Treasury from 1801 to 1814, the longest tenure in U.S. history. The 14-cent is intended primarily for precanceling for bulk third - class mail sent by approved nonprofit organizations.

PAKISTAN HAS issued two new stamps honoring Quaid-i-Azam, father of his country and its first President. The 15 paisa orange, blue and black as well as the 50 paisa purple, blue and black feature a portrait of Quaid-i-Azam. He was 71 when the Pakistani nation came into being on Aug. 14, 1947, and lived only one more year. He died Sept. 11, 1948.

For 17 years Douglass edited an abolitionist newspaper, "The North Star," in Rochester, N. Y. Later he was named marshal and recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia and minister to Haiti. Abraham Lincoln's widow gave Douglass the President's favorite walking stick as a memento of the respect the men had for each other.

The 25-cent Douglass stamp is the "Prominent Americans" series of regular stamps. Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. 20013. The envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 25-cent Frederick Douglass Stamp." Requests must be postmarked no later than Feb. 14.

ALL OF US CAN help ease the situation in many ways.

By driving slower than usual, avoiding sudden starts and stops, and applying the brake carefully, chances are you won't get caught in a skid this winter. If you should, however, you need to know—in advance—exactly how to handle it.

If you feel the car going out of control...

- Lift your foot from the accelerator but resist the natural inclination to step on the brake. Braking tends to increase a skid.
- Keep your forward motion, giving the engine a little gas if necessary.
- Turn into the skid, not away from it—turn the wheel the direction the car is slipping.
- As the car straightens, straighten the wheel to compensate for a possible skid in the other direction.

Both Robinsons Nearing $100,000 Class In Future

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Brooks Robinson is looking forward to a good season. If he has it, he could well join Baltimore's other Robinson — Frank — in the $100,000 salary class.

Last season Brooks, generally acknowledged as baseball's best third baseman, was hitting .306 with 81 runs batted in. He then went into a slump, driving in just 19 more runs and ending with a .269 average, 14 points less than he hit in 1965.

Yet Friday, the Orioles recognized the value of Brooks' hitting for the first half of the season, and signed him to a 1967 contract calling for an estimated $20,000 raise.

The club said Brooks signed for about $75,000. Last year he made $55,000.

Another veteran who got a financial boost Friday was Felipe Alou of Atlanta. The outstanding Cuban signed a one-year, $15,000 contract.

Princeton, 30-16, 'Freeze' Winner

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

A fast break or a stall. It second at 5-1 by defeating Yale makes no difference to the Big Red's Princeton Tigers in college basketball.

The once-beaten Tigers, fifth-ranked nationally in The Associated Press poll, won their eighth straight and 16th in 17 starts by defeating Dartmouth 30-16 Friday night.

That's right. The final score was 30-16.

A few weeks ago Princeton walloped Dartmouth 116-42 on the Indians' home court in Hanover, N.H. Before their return game at Princeton's Dillon Gym, Dave Gavitt, filling in as Dartmouth coach for the ailing Doggie Julian, figured the way to win was to depend on fewer shots.

So, in a throwback to the low-scoring games of 50 years ago, Dartmouth stalled for nearly 34 of the 40 minutes of play and took just 19 shots from the field, most of them in the final minutes. The Indians made five.

Princeton got only 11 shots, but made good on six of them. Princeton's victory kept the Tigers in first place in the Ivy League at 6-0. Cornell took over at Ithaca 80-73 for the Big Red's 10th victory in their last 11 starts. In other Ivy games, Penn whipped Harvard 76-56 at Philadelphia while Brown upset Columbia 90-88 at New York.

Villanova snapped St. Peter's eight-game winning streak and handed the Peacocks their second defeat in 15 starts, 62-48 at Jersey City, N.J.

U of Pacific won its 10th in a row by defeating Los Angeles Loyola on the road 67-62 and two free throws by Charlie Parks after the final buzzer sounded gave Idaho State an upset 78-76 road triumph over Seattle.

In other results, all home court victories. California edged the Air Force 59-55. Stanford downed Denver 66-58. San Francisco humbled San Jose 72-60. Santa Clara whipped UCal, Santa Barbara, 94-79 and Weber State squeaked by Northern Arizona 78-76.

John deBrosse's four points in the last 44 seconds gave The Citadel a 73-70 road victory over Virginia Military.

Crestview Gains Edge At Western

PITTSBURGH — A former Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher, Nellie King, has been named the third man on the broadcast team of Pirate games this season.

Appointment of King to join Bob Prince and Jim Woods in broadcasting Pirate games over KDKA-TV and KDKA-Radio was announced today by Atlantic, Pittsburgh Brewing Co. and KDKA-TV and KDKA-Radio.

King will begin his new assignment when the Pirates go to Florida later this month for spring training.

Randy McBride led the attack with 16 points but had plenty of help from Jack McCoy with 12 while Tom Blair and John Collela had 11 each and Jim Bable added 10. Mike Owen's 13 points topped Western Reserve.

For Crestview it was the eighth win as against six losses this season while Western is 9-7 now. Western shot 34 per cent hitting 21 of 62.

Western Reserve nipped Crestview in the jayvee game, 48-46.

W. Virginia's Top 3 Rated Schools Win

By The Associated Press

The top three West Virginia high school basketball teams stayed on the winning track in Friday night action, with No. 1 ranked Richwood squeaking past Princeton by a hair on its unbeaten chin.

Byron Chambers dunked Richwood's winning basket to drop Princeton in overtime, 67-65 at Princeton.

Narrowly missing a victory from the foul line, Princeton pushed the game into overtime at 59-59 when Harold Webb scored on the first of two free throws, but missed on the second.

Chambers scored 24 points to lead Richwood to its 14th victory of the season.

In other top of the ticket action, second ranked Williamson remained unbeaten with an 85-71 victory over Huntington St. Joseph. And third ranked Charleston defeated fifth ranked Parkersburg 69-55.

Williamson opened up with a 10-point lead at 23-13 at the end of the first quarter and stretched it to a 42-28 lead at the half. Billy Wells led the Wolfpack attack with 21 points, followed by Jim Hambrick with 19 and John Smith with 18.

Hot scoring Curtis Price scored 32 points in leading Charleston to victory over Parkersburg. Charleston trailed 14-13 at the end of the first quarter, but then scored eight straight points to lead solid command.

Price hit 12 of 20 from the floor and eight of 13 from the foul line, scoring 17 points in the first half and 15 in the second. Charleston held a 29-22 half-time advantage.

The only other top ten team seeking action Friday was sixth ranked Elkins, scoring an 85-64 victory over Grafton.

Wheeling, ranked eighth in the top ten, was forced to cancel its game against Triadelphia Friday night because 14 Wheeling players—nine of them varsity men—were suffering from the flu.

Three Unhurt In 2 Mishaps

A city trucker and two southwestern Columbian County youths escaped injury in two mishaps investigated Friday by the Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Rodney Eugene Gilkinson, 21, of Box 399, East Liverpool, was uninjured when his tractor-trailer truck went off the roadway and struck a guardrail on the Route 307 ramp leading to Route 170 north of here at 6:50 p.m.

Officers said there was slight damage to the truck and guardrail.

Edward Charles Thompson, 17, of Summitville and Gary Thomas, 17, of 202 E. Main St., Salineville, were unhurt when Thompson's 1962 car veered off Seigler Rd. near Route 39 at 11:45 p.m.

The patrol said Thompson was headed west and the car went off the left side and struck a tree, demolishing the front and right side of the auto.

His Social Security number is 123-45-6789.

3 Listed As Dead Have Turned Up As Red Captives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Navy men listed as killed in Vietnam action have turned up as Communist prisoners, says the Pentagon.

A spokesman refused to say how the Pentagon learned the three men were alive. He said they went down in two planes apparently hit by North Vietnamese antiaircraft fire and were listed as dead on a basis of fellow pilots' reports. He did not say which two were together.

The three were listed Friday as Lt. j.g. Porter A. Halyburton, Decatur, Ga.; Lt. Cmdr. Robert B. Doremus, Wilmington, Del.; and Cmdr. Fred A. Franke Jr., San Diego, Calif.

Red, Red Robin

LISBON—Harold (Red) Deidrich of the East Liverpool Red Deidrichs got an early start on spring Friday. He saw a robin near his greenhouse. He said a feeder on the lawn has attracted 16 kinds of birds this winter.

As they ran out, one of the bandits yelled: "See you in church."

See You In Church, Fleeing Bandit Yells

DETROIT (AP) — Two gunmen held up a branch of the City National Bank Friday and fled with $18,000.

As they ran out, one of the bandits yelled: "See you in church."

Youth Placed On Probation In Auto Case

LISBON — Larry Wilson, 18, of Hanoverton R. D. 1 was placed on probation in Columbian County Southwest Court Thursday after pleading guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle owned by Joseph Hrubay of Salineville R. D. 1 without his consent.

Judge J. L. MacDonald sentenced Wilson to 30 days in jail, then suspended the jail term and put him on good behavior for one year. The court ordered the youth to pay $11.80 court costs.

On recommendation of Prosecuting Atty. J. Warren Bettis, the court dismissed charges that Wilson stole a plastic waste basket and a shotgun owned by Hrubay. The alleged offenses occurred in October. Wilson pleaded not guilty to all three charges when arraigned before Judge MacDonald Jan. 3.

Four drivers were fined $10 and costs each Friday:

Robert E. Lacey, Lisbon R. D. 4, operating an unsafe vehicle; Thomas W. Jenkins, Beloit R. D. 2, driving left of center, and Daniel L. Kolarik, Lisbon R. D. 5, and Joseph J. Reese of Bell School Rd., East Liverpool, speeding. Reese had a valid license but, Judge MacDonald noted, the defendant now has a valid license and ordered him to pay $5 court costs only.

Council Weighs Maintenance For Hookstown Street

HOOKSTOWN — Francis Doak and Mrs. Gerry Campbell appeared at the Hookstown Council meeting Thursday night to request the borough take over the care and maintenance of Washington St., a dead-end private accessway to their homes.

Since there are other residents living on the street, Council suggested a special meeting be called when all property owners involved may express their opinions. James Anderson, president, will notify residents of the date of meeting.

The treasurer's report was not read, since the treasurer, Mrs. Don Laughlin, is at City Hospital recuperating from an automobile accident.

Bills approved for payment were $55 to the Duquesne Light Co. and $100 as the annual retainer for Atty. Lee Whitmore of Beaver Falls.

The next meeting will be March 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the Borough Building.

Titled Vehicles Show Decrease

LISBON — The total of new motor vehicles titled at the Columbian County Courthouse in January was 374 — the lowest since 325 in February 1964.

Last month's figure compares with 414 in December and 417 in January a year ago.

Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey reports the Car Title Department issued 3,225 auto titles, 38 duplicate titles, 710 memorandums, 8 duplicate memorandums, 1,235 notations of liens, 1,106 cancellations of liens and 893 acknowledgments.

Stacey said he paid the county treasurer $9,930 last month in fees collected in Common Pleas Court and the Car Title Department. This compares with $6,862 for January a year ago.

He said the state treasurer will be paid $5,227 from the collection of sales and use tax, $41,436 from the dealer's tax, $1,176 for car title fees and $827 for inspection certificates.

Eighty-two civil cases were filed in Common Pleas Court last month, compared with 59 during January 1966.

A spokesman refused to say how the Pentagon learned the three men were alive. He said they went down in two planes apparently hit by North Vietnamese antiaircraft fire and were listed as dead on a basis of fellow pilots' reports. He did not say which two were together.

The three were listed Friday as Lt. j.g. Porter A. Halyburton, Decatur, Ga.; Lt. Cmdr. Robert B. Doremus, Wilmington, Del.; and Cmdr. Fred A. Franke Jr., San Diego, Calif.

The following cases were dismissed for want of prosecution at plaintiffs' costs:

Panama Treaty Stirs Opposition From GOP Club

LISBON — The Mid-County Republican Club went on record Thursday night against a new Panama treaty which President Lyndon B. Johnson is to present to Congress early this year.

Members took action after hearing a letter from Harold Lord Varney, president of the National Advisory Committee of Pan American policy.

He said the new treaty would mean "the surrender to the unstable and corrupt republic of Panama 503 square miles of American soil — ours in perpetuity under present treaty." He also said, "for all practical purposes we would give up control of the Panama Canal."

The club voted to make its opposition known in a letter to Sen. Frank J. Lausche.

Mrs. Walter Cope, president, appointed the following committee to prepare bylaws: Mrs. Genesta Barr, chairman; Mrs. Alton Crothers, Mrs. Paul Molkenkopf, Elyer Hichliffe and Charles Pike, adviser.

Brief talks were given by Mayor Dean Stockman, Clyde Pike, candidate for mayor, and fare language school at Ft. Alton Crothers, candidate for village Council.

Mrs. Cope called for a work session at 8 p. m. Feb. 28 at GOP headquarters in the Wick Hotel building. The next meeting will be March 2.

The money, approved Friday, will be used by the Technical Tape Corp. in Wheeling to provide on-the-job training for the unemployed.

The real name of "laughing gas" is nitrous oxide.

Court Entry

LISBON — Occasionally Judge Joel H. Sharp of Common Pleas Court puts some humor into the usually humdrum entries in his bench docket.

Vernon Mathews, 39, of Leetonia R. D. 2 pleaded "no contest" on a charge of driving 65 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone on the East Liverpool - Wellsville Rd. He was cited Jan. 23 at 6:31 a. m.

James E. Stewart, 36, of 1129 Ohio Ave., was accused of speeding 70 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone on Route 30. He was cited Sunday at 4:05 p. m., the patrol said.

Meanwhile, Richard D. Barnard, 18, of Wooster forfeited a $32.50 bond on a charge of speeding 75 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone on Route 30. He was cited Sunday at 4:55 p. m., the patrol said.

"3 p. m. Groundhog Day. No groundhog in Columbiana County, Ohio, has yet seen his shadow, and from the cloud cover here at Lisbon, Ohio, it would seem that none will before sunset tonight."

"However, it has been reported that the groundhog of Gobbler's Knob, Punxsutawney, Pa., saw his shadow at 7:45. Said groundhog is claimed by the residents of Punxsutawney to be the official groundhog and that his jurisdiction comprises the northeastern part of the United States, north of the Mason and Dixon line and east of the Mississippi River. The next six weeks will tell! My considered advice is not to bet against the Punxsutawney groundhog."

The test is open only to Wellsville residents between the ages of 21 and 31. It will be given in the Council chambers.

Pittsburgh Man Dies Of Stabbing Wounds

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stab wounds suffered in a tavern have taken the life of Roosevelt Wells, 26, of the city's Hill District.

Wells was found unconscious in a jail cell Friday and taken to Mercy Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Police said Wells was stabbed in the head Thursday night. He was taken to the hospital for treatment but was not charged.

Later, officers said, he became disorderly and abusive with nurses and doctors. He was charged with drunkenness and taken to jail.
